NATIVE OF LUNENBERG.

Miles W. Gray, Prominent New Hampshire Man, Dead.

Colebrook, N. H., July 6 .- Miles W Gray, member of the executive council for the first district, died Thursday after a painful illness of 16 weeks. Mr. Gray had passed three weeks in the early stage of the disease in Boston in consultation with specialists, but for the last 13 weeks had been at his home in Columbia, five miles from this Miles W. Gray was born in Lunen-His mother died when he was three years old and when he was 11 his father also died.

Young Gray remained upon the Vermont farm until he was 16 years of age, working at his farm duties and going to school winters, and then be came New Hampshire, and since 1875 had been one of the leading farmers and lumber operators of northern New Hampshire. He had acquired large real estate, timber and financial interests in Vermont as well as New Hampshire and was rated a fine type of self-made man.
Politically Mr. Gray was a Republican, and as such he served in the legislature of 1897, as county commissioner, selectman and finally member of the governor's council. Mr. Gray was president of the Colebrook Savings bank, and advisory memalso held membership in Colebrook lodge of Knights of Pythias and the Patrons of While we were boasting that the Car-Husbandry, and his religious affiliations man submarine could never strike our were with the Methodists.

He is survived by his widow, Harriet L. Tilton Gray, whom he married Oct. 20, 1880, and one son.

His death leaves a vacancy in the governor's council which is likely to require a special election, as there are only three surviving members, one of whom is in poor health.

Mr. Gray's funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Methodist church in Colebrook.
